The vast majority of pupils with SEND are educated in their local mainstream settings. The LA invited mainstream schools to bid for funds to support the adaption of existing accommodation to better support children with SEN. It is recognised that a number of mainstream settings would be able to provide an education for more complex children and young people with SEND if they had access to some of the facilities that are currently only available within specialist provision, for example, access to a sensory room or hoist. This approach allows more children and young people to remain in their local mainstream settings resulting in them developing peer relationships within their community. If more children and young people with SEND were able to remain in mainstream settings this would result in a reduction of cost pressures for specialist placements.
